Republic Day: 26th January 2018

The entire CUTS family gathered in the lawn in-front of Shantarakshita Library of the University to commemorate the ideas and ideals of Republic Day of the country. Hon'ble Vice Chancellor Prof. Geshe Ngwang Samten hoisted the national flag followed by mass recitation of the national anthem. After saluting the national flag Hon'ble V.C. congratulated and addressed the gathering.

Hon'ble V.C. stated that now after more than enough physical development the intellectuals across the world have started to think on the fact that mere physical development cannot provide the peace and containment, something more is needed to live in harmony. Up to the some level the physical wealth is necessary but after that only the proper training of mind can lead us towards peace and harmony. Being an Institute established to study the traditional knowledge of mind training and their practice, our responsibility is more than the others. We are living a collective life our all means of pleasures and facilities are due to contribution of many peoples of present and past generations. In true sense our life is a universal life, which urges the sense of universal responsibility from all sentient human beings. Our thoughts, words and actions must reflect this sense of responsibility in our all activities and this will lead the society as well as the country towards happy society and contained country. On this auspicious occasion we must think in terms of our contribution to the society and Institution.

Once again Hon'ble V.C. congratulated and wished the gathering.
